

In the improved mapper.py and reducer.py, `yield` statement was used, which is a generator that creates iterators and has the advantage that an element of a sequence is not produced until we actually need it. This can help a lot in terms of computational expensiveness or memory consumption.